Kitsap hotels see a boost in 2015

Written by Tad Sooter/Kitsap Sun

More people stayed at Kitsap hotels last year, and they brought their wallets with them. . . Both occupancy and revenue were up significantly at hotels in the county in 2015, according to statistics gathered by STR Inc. and made available by Visit Kitsap Peninsula. Occupancy was up 15 percent over 2014, while revenue improved by 24 percent. The trend . . . continue reading

Poulsbo's swords in the stone unveiled

Written by Rachel Seymour/Kitsap Sun

City officials unveiled a new piece of artwork at the waterfront park Saturday afternoon. The piece, three steel and glass swords, was inspired by a Norwegian monument just outside the city of Stavanger on the southern end of Norway. The Norwegian monument—the Sverd i fjell, which means “swords in rock”— . . . Artist Lisa Stirrett designed the artwork . . . continue reading and watch video

Kitsap leads state in health coverage

Written by Tad Sooter/Kitsap Sun

When it comes to health care, Kitsap is the best covered county in the state. Kitsap had the smallest percentage of residents without health insurance of any Washington county in 2014, according to a report released this week by the Office of the Insurance Commissioner. Like most of the state, Kitsap saw a sharp decline in uninsured residents following . . . continue reading
